

Call for Proposals: Leadership through Service

- ◆ Are you helping improve New York City?
- ◆ Do you work with youth to improve their leadership skills?
- ◆ Does your research take you into the community?
- ◆ Have you done research on adult learning or continuing education?

SHARE YOUR WORK: SUBMIT A PROPOSAL!

WHO

THE ENTIRE TC AND CU COMMUNITY

Free to all! Notable speakers include Prof. Megan Laverty of the Philosophy and Education Program, Dr. Dawn Arno of the Institute for Urban and Minority Education, and David Pratt of the Carnegie Council. You don't have to present to attend, and it's free!

WHEN

MARCH 8, 2011

The conference begins at 11:30am. We will start with a free lunch and time for mingling. Presentations will begin at 1pm with our keynote.

WHAT

15 MINUTE PRESENTATIONS

Showcase your work in a 15-minute presentation to students and faculty. Meet like-minded colleagues! We welcome presentations of service projects, course work, successful lessons/curricula, formal research, literature reviews, or theoretical work. We value a wide range of topics and disciplines related to Leadership and/or Service.

HOW

SUBMIT A PROPOSAL BY FEBRUARY 20TH

Submit your proposal online at www.tiny.cc/kdpconference. You may also send a one-page outline of your proposal with your name, program, and an abstract to KappaChapterTC@gmail.com. Notifications will go out by February 27th.

About Kappa Delta Pi at Teachers College

On March 8th, 1911, a group of top American educators (yes, including John Dewey) gathered at the University of Illinois to form an honors society. Kappa Delta Pi continues to honor the achievements of educators and promote excellence in education. There are deep connections between TC and KDP. TC was founded as an institution for all areas of education: children, parents, families, schools, and communities. KDP was founded as an honors society open to all members of the educational community: female, male, pre-service, in-service, retired, k-12, and post-secondary teachers. Both institutions have remained true to their roots.

We offer a full slate of activities, but there are other reasons to apply for membership. KDP is a pan-educational society. Good educators--and good professionals--are members of discipline-specific organizations. Active KDP members are currently working in dozens of educational fields in 30 countries.

KDP members craft compelling service projects that can reach outside the classroom, such as the ongoing "Literacy Alive!" campaign, or our own mural project and charity book drive.

The 50,000 KDP members are among the most accomplished educators. Check out the Laureate chapter. Our National Teacher of the Year awards recognize the best of k-12 practitioners.

As Kappa chapter enters our 91st year at Teachers College, we remain enthusiastic and believe that this organization has the ability to help bring change to our community. For more information, or to learn how to apply for membership, visit the Kappa Chapter homepage: <http://kdp.pressible.org>.

